University of Rome Three, 25-26 May 2023

The second edition of Spring School in Techno-Scientific Diplomacy 2022, organized by the University of Padua in partnership with the University of Roma Tre, is a research workshop aiming at creating an experimental Master. Through an innovative and original approach, the Master will allow the participants to understand the nexus among science, diplomacy and decision-making processes, in a world with an expanding technological density that requires techno-scientific diplomatic initiatives in support of quick and adequate responses to growing challenges.

The working language of the Spring School will be English. Participants who complete the program will be awarded a certificate of attendance.
