The Summer School organized by Unipd is an initiative of the International Public Policy Association (IPPA) and is aimed at PhD students and practitioners who work in research centers or government institutions.

During the week, the implications of the evaluation approach on the policy process, on the role of citizens, on the implementation and effectiveness of European programs from a sustainability point of view will be explored in depth. You will be able to discuss your project with the teachers and receive useful feedback to improve it.
